»i^s

t?

```
Si* ^f Ji js * * s* l E X ' ^ x ^ 1 ^ ^ ^
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               x ^
                                                                                                                                               J*
                                                                                                                                                                         *• "  r a? 2s*
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               . »>• ^t ^
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            *?
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   •^
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  •"* *^
                                                                                                                                                                                                   Jl*^
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       2 * 5 . D. _ ^S"^^""*^
                                                                            «%"!
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          r
r<sup>1</sup>*^
             §*
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 ^"T'c
                                                                                                                                              S С
course, was not destroyed, though he suffered from the eye. Jointhi (10the iv. p. 286) stime up the day fund : - '
i (Napedestr's, but the lesses we suffered much it fund to more than 808) men hors de combet; this was little for much for us." In fact, the Allies were then holyin sure game as was adopted by themest Grant against I. In continual lighting the smaller face, however rolation still was the greatest sufferes.
                                                                                                                                     estacy him it might be said that he was also poleon was resisting the numerous enconics
                                                                                                    to his illustrious prisoners, who, on his depur
                                                                                                                    either from false calculation or from neglige
                                                                                                                                                                                       eriously wounded, as well as tienerals tirou
                                                                                                                                                                                                       I he great loss to the conqueror.1 Mar
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            th of February drew to its close the Allies were weagh mith they destroy him.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          loon continued astonishing flurope, lengued a eneing reverses they fell back without disorder,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                         her's corps, in a severy action, but the vic inforcements, which dully arrived, and which so hind the Aube, where they rellied and obtain several points, but their retreat was not a rout
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          to resume the offensive.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         At Chaonne, on the 7th of March, he
```

^ £-c

£-«< ?* 5-

£ -

, but still the vultures return to the charge, and assailants - every blow of his beak is the death nd the engle in the Alps. The engle slays hunit this war might be compared to the battles of enemy's masses advanced, and gradually concenhe 21st of February, which place he did not armies in the name of his uncle, Louis XVIII.; Laz, wheree he had addressed a proclamation to es gain in these conflicts! In spite of prodigies ine of operations. How much uscless glory did he 16th of March following. dily heard of the Comte d'Artois's arrival at fate of battles. He was aware that since the lostilities were maintained with increased vigor Pebruary the The d'Angouleine had arrived at

^i 2'^L E" s 4"s?i*PfF 3 i i* f